Archival Plastic School-Home Folders in 16 Bright Colors

Communication between families and teachers is a vital part of supporting a student's education. Information packets are a great way to keep in touch with parents and let them know what's going on, but manila envelopes and paper folders, chosen as an inexpensive option, frequently last less than one semester, never mind a whole school year. Even tear-proof envelopes get ragged. Not so with our plastic school/home folders! They will survive the school year in great shape.

"I found you while doing a search for folders to be used in my classrooms. For thirty-four years I have made folders, so I decided, 'Let me see if I can find something to make my life easier,' and there you were!" said Beth Thompson of Denham Springs, La.

Durable and attractive, our plastic school/home folders are made of archival polypropylene and are available in 16 bright colors. Printing on the front of each folder indicates that they are used for communication between school and home. The inside pockets are printed to indicate which papers parents should keep, and which should be returned to school with their child, making it easy to invite a response and keep lines of communication open.

The folders are also available with printing on the front for subjects, class work, or homework, or plain without printing. All folders can be easily customized through the use of two clear overlay pockets on the outside of the covers, or they can be custom printed with your school's logo or mascot.

Parents appreciate having these high-quality folders too. A long-lasting folder will let parents know that the contents are valued and leave a positive impression.

"I love these folders! The clear pockets on the outside are wonderful for displaying school schedules and other important papers, not to mention the superb durability of these folders. My son was given one by his school last year and I wanted more!" said Tina Woloszyn of Beacon Falls, Conn.
